Folks have been asking for an update on the Hrez family. The family is continuing to settle into life in Canada. Some family members are now living in Halifax and some are still here in Truro, living in the home on Ross St. Bassam continues to work for Wallace Living and is also busy doing painting contract work around town. All three children are doing a combination of schooling and work. Our initial financial support of the family continued beyond the first year commitment, but the family is now financially independent of the sponsoring churches. Rita's parents have completed all of their screening in Lebanon and it is anticipated that they will arrive in Canada soon under the government programs that allow for extended family of new Canadians to enter the country. They will live with the family at the Ross Street house. This will be the last official update on the Hrez family as we recognize and respect their right to privacy and freedom in their new lives here. It has been a gift and a learning experience to support them as a family and as new Canadians.
